Meet the AI Tool That Reads Your Research Out Loud — While You Get on With Your Day

What Is NotebookLM?

NotebookLM is a free AI tool from Google (notebooklm.google.com). Upload documents — PDFs, articles, websites, slides — and ask questions, get summaries, or, with the Audio Overview feature, listen to it as a discussion.

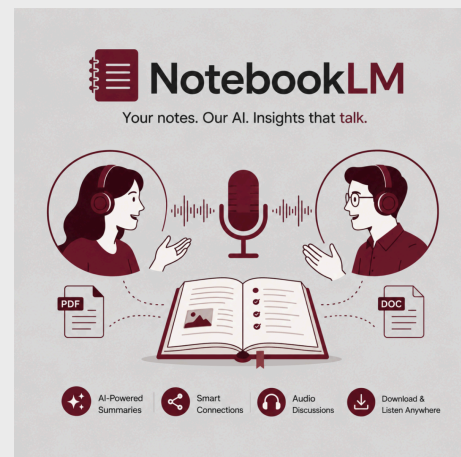

What Does Audio Overview Actually Do?

With one click, two AI hosts start up a lively "deep dive" discussion based on your sources, summarizing the material, making connections between topics, and generating content you can download for on-the-go listening.

These hosts banter, use analogies, and summarize your content in a way that sounds like a high-quality radio show — not a robotic text-to-speech voice.

Think of it as having two well-informed colleagues sit down and talk through a document you uploaded, pulling out the key points so you don't have to read every word yourself.

How Relaunchers Can Use It

Get talking points on your own resume

This might be the single most useful way to use NotebookLM as a relauncher. Upload your own resume as a source and ask it to generate an Audio Overview discussing your background, strengths, and the story your experience tells. Hearing two AI hosts talk through your own career — out loud, in conversation form — often surfaces talking points and connections you wouldn't have written yourself. It is also a remarkably effective way to rehearse: you start to hear your own experience the way an interviewer might, and you walk away with language you can actually use when someone asks, "Tell me about yourself."

Research an industry you're returning to Upload recent articles, reports, or whitepapers about your field and let Audio Overview give you a conversational summary of what has changed. It is a fast way to absorb a lot of information without having to sit at a desk reading for hours.

Prepare for interviews

Upload a company's annual report, press releases, or a job description and ask NotebookLM to create an Audio Overview so you can listen to a summary while getting ready or commuting to the interview.

Absorb career reentry resources

Upload articles, guides, or resources about returnships and career reentry — including iRelaunch content — and let the tool turn them into a digestible audio discussion you can return to anytime.

Get up to speed on new tools and technology

If your field has changed significantly since your break, upload explainer documents or tutorials and use Audio Overview to get a high-level understanding before diving into the details.

What's New in 2025 and Beyond

The tool keeps evolving: a September 2025 upgrade added support for 80+ languages and four formats — Deep Dive, Brief, Critique, and Debate — plus controls for voice tone, length, and topic focus. A premium tier, NotebookLM Plus, offers higher limits via Google One AI Premium or Workspace. The free version is plenty to get started.

How to Get Started in Three Steps

1. Go to notebooklm.google.com and sign in with your Google account
2. Create a new notebook and upload your resume as a source
3. Click "Generate Audio Overview" and listen to two AI hosts talk through your own background
